

Nita M. Lowey 21st Century Community Learning Centers Teacher Survey:

The 21st CCLC program is interested in learning about the impact participation in the program may have had on students' engagement in learning. This is one of the outcomes that 21st CCLC programs are required to report to the federal Department of Education.

Engagement in learning includes emotional engagement (enjoyment of the lesson), behavioral engagement (paying attention in class, asking questions in class, putting effort into assignments), cognitive engagement (understanding the importance of education, formulating personal learning goals), and agentic engagement (constructive contributions to teaching and learning processes). In online environments, engagement in learning also includes high levels of interaction between students and teachers and having a social presence in the course.
